

Rich Macias is the Manager of the Transportation Planning and Programming Division at Southern California Association of Governments. Mr. Macias is responsible for the development of the Regional Transportation Plan, which encompasses six counties of Southern California, and contains over two hundred and thirteen billion dollars worth of transportation investments. Mr. Macias has over twenty years of professional planning experience, and holds a masters degree in urban and regional planning from the University of Southern California.